2. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: in the environment of a dual mode mouse the closes prior art Cheng '531 who teaches a dual mode input device in which the first mode of operation is to expose the lower housing to a contact plane, the lower housing comprising a photo-sensor window which detects the texture variation of the plane. In the second mode the input device is to perform data input without moving the main body, the main body is turned upside down and an attachment having a trackball is mounted over the photo-sensor window for data input. Cheng fails to teach or suggest the mouse operation and components of the present application.
